Let's work together.

Andrew Fede and Richard Gil de Leon have the ideas and experience to maintain Bogota's local services and small town character while getting our local property taxes back under control.

— Here are some of the things we will do: —

- Oppose unaffordable salaries like the new administrator and chief financial officer salary of $110,000.
- Advertise for Borough job openings, interview more than one person, and hire the best applicants.
- Share services and purchasing with neighboring towns when this will save tax dollars.
- Oppose the Democrats' proposed merger of our DPW with the County, which The Record called a "snow job" because no savings have been demonstrated and because it will cost taxpayers $120,000 just for a study.
- Oppose wasteful purchases without public bids, like the new $24,000 Borough Hall telephone system that did not work for months.
- Put the taxpayers first in negotiations with employee unions, and in renewed efforts to obtain grant funds from state and federal sources.
- Find new sources of revenue, such as contracts with advertising firms.
- Control health care costs, for example, by shopping each year for the best coverage at the lowest prices, and encouraging employees who have duplicate coverage to opt out of the Borough's plan.
- Introduce campaign finance reform and anti-pay-to-play ordinances to kick the Democrat political bosses out of Bogota.
- Demand that the Mayor and Council openly discuss issues because more discussion will lead to better decisions for the Borough.
- Listen to your questions and concerns, whether you are a Republican, a Democrat, or an Independent.
